Embassy of the United States of America

American Citizen Services
Shanti Path, Chanakyapuri
New Delhi, India 110021
Tel: 011 2419 8000
Fax: 011 2419 8407
Email: acsnd@state.gov

To whom it may concern

This office occasionally receives requests to provide “No Objection” letters concerning a person’s intent to marry in India. The Embassy cannot make any official certification about the status or eligibility to marry of persons residing in the United States who propose to be married abroad, or about the laws of the United States or of any of the fifty States or Territories regarding eligibility for marriage or the solemnization of a marriage. Some countries require persons who wish to marry to provide written proof, issued by governmental authority, that there is no legal impediment to the marriage. No such document, or governmental authority to issue such document, exists in the United States.

Previously, this Embassy provided a letter to American citizens wishing to marry in India which stated that we were prohibited from notarizing affidavits concerning marital status. Based on new guidance from the U.S. Department of State, the Embassy is authorized to notarize a statement from the U.S. citizen party to the marriage, in which the citizen him or herself affirms that he / she is free to marry.

To whom it may concern

The Embassy of the United States occasionally receives requests to provide “No Objection” certificates concerning a person’s intent to be a donor or recipient for an organ transplant. The Embassy cannot make any official certification about a person residing in the United States who proposes to be a donor or recipient for an organ transplant, including verification of or attestations to the relationship between the organ donor and recipient. Some countries require persons who wish to be an organ donor or recipient to provide written proof, issued by governmental authority, of the relationship between the donor and recipient. No such document, or governmental authority to issue such document, exists for this purpose in the United States.

The Embassy may notarize a statement from any person who is a party to the organ transplant, in which the individual affirms their relationship to the organ donor or recipient and attests that they are submitting to the procedure freely and without coercion.
